

Genova, April, 29, 2018

Dear potential RegML Attendees,

RegML (and the companion course- MLCC) have been conceived to make basic as well more advanced machine learning topics accessible to a wide audience. The School(s) have gained popularity and in the last few years the number of applications steadily doubled the capacity we can sustain (120 attendees). This means that every year roughly half of the applications are forcibly turned down. At the same time, every year we have a worryingly high number of last minute cancellations- up to 10-15%, which in turn means that a high number of you are taken away the opportunity to attend the school.

While until now we have always worked hard to keep RegML completely free, after much thinking, this year we decided to try and put a fee of 50 Eu (100 Eu for industrial attendees and no fee for students from UniGE). We hope this will solve the problem of last minute cancellations and at the same time that the proposed fee will be sustainable to most. Should this not be the case, we will gladly consider requests to waive the fee.

Hope to see many of you in Genova.

Best regards,

Lorenzo Rosasco

Associate Professor, DIBRIS, Università degli Studi di Genova

LCSL, Massachusetts Institute of Technology & Istituto Italiano di Tecnologia